

2023 Innovations in Regulatory Science Awards Nomination Submission Instructions

Deadline

Nominations due June 15, 2023

Award Categories

Leadership Award recognizes an individual's significant contributions, national leadership, and service in the field of regulatory science and public health. Regulatory science includes the development of new tools, standards, and approaches to assess the safety, efficacy, quality, and performance of all FDA-regulated products, foods, human and veterinary drugs, vaccines and other biological products, and medical devices. The Award honors an individual who has made meaningful and enduring lifetime contributions to

- a. advance the principles or the practice of regulatory science
- b. build awareness of the field of regulatory science on a national scale
- c. transform the process for development and/or review of FDA-regulated products

Innovation Award is for an individual, team, or organization that has improved public health through a specific innovation in regulatory issues or science. The Award recognizes outstanding contribution to advancing regulatory science through an initiative to improve the health or safety of individuals, specific groups, communities, or the nation.

Advocacy/Policy Award is for an individual, group, or organization in recognition of significant policy achievements that advance regulatory science and have a direct impact on the public. The Award recognizes a patient advocate, government leader or other individual, group, or organization whose advocacy efforts have

- a. advanced the regulatory science agenda
- b. accelerated innovation and modernization in regulatory practice at FDA
- c. strengthened the safety and efficacy of health/consumer products
